Accentuating the Setting

Located in the center of the Century Square mixed use development project on the Texas A&M campus, the George™, will bring an authentic, refined and local experience to the Brazos Valley region. This property is comprised of large community lounge areas both inside and out and intimate settings with its craft cocktail bar, restaurant and wine bar. The George™ name is a subtle nod to the many famous Georges throughout history who helped change industry or history from music, energy, film, photography and agriculture. Most notably to the immediate region is George H.W. Bush whose presidential library is at Texas A&M University. The name “George” has both an English elegance and Southern connotation which is consistent with the hotel’s design.

Creating the Unexpected

The property boasts over 5,000 square feet of flexible meeting space including a ballroom and boardroom that connects to the main plaza of Century Square. While The George embraces the region’s southern hospitality, the hotel will offer an abstract, contemporary aesthetic and art installations that are rooted in the agriculture and mechanical community while paying subtle homage to the region’s railway station, the town’s namesake. The “Refined Rustic” design is a modern yet warm blend of hard wood floors, exposed ceilings and brick accents in the interiors. Every aspect of the hotel is crafted with authentic and regional details using design, art, style and culture to infuse this new property with all the amenities and services of a top-luxury hotel, while simultaneously working to maintain a distinct sense of place.
